MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. – Nov. 25, 2014 – ABILITY Network, a leading healthcare technology company, announced today that Tim Adams has joined the organization as a member of its Board of Directors and Chair of its Audit Committee. Adams currently serves as Executive Vice President, Chief Financial Officer and Treasurer of Demandware, an industry-leading provider of enterprise cloud commerce solutions.

“As we continue to grow and mature our business, I’m so pleased that we can bring Tim’s voice to our Board,” said Mark Briggs, CEO of ABILITY Network. “Tim’s experience at athenahealth and with the public markets will add immediate value to ABILITY and brings further validation of the good work ABILITY is doing as we continue to expand our support of care providers and their patients across the country.”

“ABILITY has pulled together a tremendous management team for a company that is not only poised for further growth but also well positioned to have a true impact on the delivery of care,” said Adams.

Adams has more than three decades of financial management experience in the healthcare and technology industries. Previously, Adams held the position of Senior Vice President and CFO for athenahealth, a leading provider of cloud-based services for electronic health record (EHR), practice management, and care coordination. Adams has also served as Chief Investment Officer of Constitution Medical Investors as well as Senior Vice President of Corporate Strategy for Keystone Dental, Inc.

Earlier in his career, Adams was CFO at a number of publicly traded companies including Orthofix International N.V., a diversified medical device company; Cytoc Corporation, a developer and manufacturer of clinical products focused on women’s health; and Digex, Inc., a web hosting company that was acquired by Worldcom. Adams also held various executive level positions at Modus Media International, which was acquired by CMGI; Geotrust, which was acquired by Verisign; and GTE Internetworking / BBN Planet. Adams began his career in public accounting at Price Waterhouse. He holds an M.B.A. from Boston University and a B.S. from Murray State University.
