MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. – Nov. 12, 2014 – ABILITY Network, a leading healthcare technology company, announced today that Justin Silver has joined the organization's senior management team as Executive Vice President of Corporate Development.

In this position Silver will be responsible for identifying and leading the company's new business development and acquisition growth strategy.

"I'm very excited to welcome Justin to the ABILITY leadership team," said Mark Briggs, CEO of ABILITY Network. "He joins us at a time when ABILITY is experiencing tremendous growth as a leader in administrative and clinical support for providers responding to ongoing changes in healthcare. Justin's significant experience and network within this industry will help ABILITY continue to expand and enhance our services for these providers and the patients they care for."

Prior to joining ABILITY, Silver was a member of the business development leadership team at Healthagen, a division of Aetna, where he focused on executing a variety of provider oriented healthcare technology transactions. Silver previously served as a Vice President at Radius Ventures where he invested in both development and growth stage companies within the life sciences, medical technology, healthcare IT and services sectors.

Silver received a B.S. in business administration from Washington University in St. Louis and a M.S. in biochemistry and molecular biology from Georgetown University, graduating first in his class. In addition, Silver is a graduate of the Harvard Business School where he received the Dean's Award for leadership and currently serves on the Board of Directors of the Healthcare Alumni Association.
