MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. – Feb. 25, 2016 – ABILITY® Network, a leading information technology company, announced today that it has acquired G4 Health Systems, Inc. Terms of the transaction were not disclosed.

G4 Health Systems is a national provider of next-generation revenue cycle management (RCM) services and health data analytics for small and mid-sized hospitals, physician offices, and post-acute providers. G4 also brings advanced API-based RCM tools that can serve ABILITY Strategic Partner customers (EMR vendors, software companies, and payers, among others). ABILITY helps providers across the healthcare continuum, offering innovative applications and data analytics, including RCM services, connections to payers, and clinical support systems.

“This acquisition represents an exciting step forward for ABILITY,” said Mark A. Pulido, Chairman and CEO of ABILITY Network. “G4 and ABILITY offer complementary services to help providers and the vendors who serve them. Together we will expand the markets we serve and meet an even wider range of customer needs.”

Pulido added, “Leveraging G4’s advanced tools and analytics and ABILITY’s go-to-market capabilities will benefit our entire customer base.”

“Joining G4 with ABILITY advances the work that G4 has begun, by providing the scale to succeed in a dynamic market,” said John Carter, founder and CEO of G4 Health Systems. “The combination of the ABILITY and G4 teams will accelerate the development and delivery of state-of-the-art services to serve the ever-changing needs of our healthcare customers.”

Carter and all other G4 employees have joined the ABILITY team.
